DETAILED ACTIONEx Parte Quayle

This application is in condition for allowance except for the following formal matters:

In the Specification, there are numerous occurrences of grammatical and typographic errors and/or incomplete spelling of words. For instance:

page 2, line 1, "Anoth r" should be changed to - - Another - -;

page 2, line 13, " xtending" should be changed to - - extending - -;

page 3, line 1, "pres nt" should be changed to - - present - -;

page 3, line 25, "lat ral" should be changed to - - lateral - -;

page 4, line 1, "insid " should be changed to - - inside - - and " longated" should be changed to - - elongetd - -;

page 4, line 20, the phrase "to the press" should be changed to read as - - to press - -;

page 4, line 25, "guid " should be changed to - - guide - -, and " xtending" should be changed to - - extending - -;

page 5, line 1, "th " should be change to - - the - -;

page 5, line 25, "th ", "d scend", and "adjustm nt" should each be changed to - - the - -, - - descend - -, and - - adjustment - -, respectively;

page 6, line 13, "n w " should be changed to - - new - -; and line 6 of the Abstract, " xtending" should be changed to - - extending - -.

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: The Specification provided no antecedent basis for the wing plate being glued wit the base (claim 11).

The Abstract is objected to for exceeding more than 150 words. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

Art Unit: 3677

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

In the Claims:

- in claim 4, line 2, "middl plat" should be changed to - - middle plate - -;
- in claim 4, line 3, "th " should be change to - - the - -;
- in claim 5, line 3, "plat s" should be changed to - - plates - -;
- in claim 5, line 5, "respective ly" should be changed to - - respectively - -;
- in claim 5, line 15, "xerting" should be changed to - - exerting - -;
- in claim 5, line 23, "th " and "pressur " should each be changed to - - the - - and - - pressure - -, respectively;
- in claim 5, line 29, "band" should be changed to - - headband - -;
- in claim 5, line 30, "it" should either be deleted or defined; and
- in claim 10, line 2, "resp ctively" should be changed to - - respectively - -.

Additionally, in claim 1, recitation of "a resilient adjustment plate, being moved by the press piece to result in the two ends of the adjustment seat interfering with the ratchet teeth on the tying band" appears to be misdescriptive and contradicting to the subsequent recitation of "whereby, the tying band can become in a state of loosening instead of tightening the head of a user by way of the press piece being exerted a force." As best understood by the drawing figures and written description of the claimed headband adjustment device, by pressing the press piece 3 results in disengaging the plate slant 44 of the resilient adjustment plate 4 from the ratchet teeth on the tying band since the resilient adjustment plate 4 is lifted upward via wedge ends 32 of pressing piece 3 upon pressing piece being pressed by a user intending to adjust the position of or loosen tying band.

Allowable Subject Matter

Upon correcting aforementioned formalities, the Claims 1-11 would be allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Regarding claims 1 and 5, the prior art of record fails to teach or suggest a headband adjustment device having the structural combination requiring: a base; an adjustable seat, being joined to the base, at two opposite lateral sides thereof having a wing plate respectively and at both ends thereof having an adjusting frame with a tying band with a plurality of ratchet teeth respectively; at least a press piece, being disposed beside the wing plate; a resilient adjustment plate, being moved by the press piece to result in the two ends of the adjustment seat disengaging with the ratchet teeth on the tying band; and the tying band can become in a state of loosening instead of tightening the head of a user by way of the press piece being exerted a force.

Priority

Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Taiwan on 5/14/2003. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the Taiwan application (no. 092208766) as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).

Conclusion

As stated earlier, this application is in condition for allowance except for the aforementioned formal matters indicated in the Office action.

Prosecution on the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

A shortened statutory period for reply to this action is set to expire TWO MONTHS from the mailing date of this letter.

Art Unit: 3677

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Feng (U. S. Patent No. 5,467,508), Maggi (U. S. Patent No. 6,185,794), Hattori (U. S. Patent No. 4,795,384), Ballet al. (U. S. Patent No. 4,999,846), Nicolinas (U. S. Patent No. 3,992,720) and Faulcomer (U. S. Patent No. 4,607,398) each demonstrate adjustable buckle device structure.
